

About Jenna:

Originally from New Jersey, Jenna moved to Marietta, Georgia with her parents and brother in 2010, when she was in 3rd grade. Soon after they moved to Georgia, Jenna's family started going to church for the first time at Eastminster Presbyterian Church. Because of this, Jenna attributes most of her faith development to her time spent in her youth group. She affirms the importance of maturing your faith in adolescence, surrounded by mentors and a familiar church so that when it's time to leave home, youth can become young adults with a strong foundation for their faith. Jenna is currently a part-time student at the University of Georgia studying Social Work and has been pursuing a call to ministry by student interning. She has been working at First Baptist Church of Watkinsville for the past two years.

Jenna currently lives in Athens with her best friends and her precious cat, Cleo. She's a lover of anything outdoors: hiking, kayaking, rafting, camping, and more! She also plays the cello and is an avid book lover, so please feel free to give her reading recommendations!
